

Wisdom and Fury

by Thomas Piano

Peter

Ron/a mysterious figure

Miguel

Thomas

Scene 1:

Narration: 2 days ago, a wise traveler, Peter, seeks his answer for wisdom by traveling far. He has been told that the tree can give answers to all who passed by. Peter sets a trail to the tree and seeks his answer for his wisdom.

The tree appears and Peter walks to the tree.

Peter:

Okay, that's the tree they're talking about. I wonder if this tree can give me wisdom.

Suddenly, a mysterious figure interrupted Peter.

A mysterious figure:

(Interrupting) Hey! Who are you?

Peter:

Name's Peter. Who are you?

A mysterious figure:

My name's Ron. You never heard of me?

Peter has no clue on who Ron is.

Ron:

Anyway, what are you doing here?

Peter:

I'm here seek wisdom. And, I've been told that this tree has some answers.

Ron:

Okay

Peter:

Plus, what are you doing here?

Ron:

Well, I'm here to look for my worthy opponent and I've heard that he will be at this tree.

Peter asks Ron about his motive with a curious face.

Peter:

Oh, I see... Why?

Ron:

You should know. I'm a fighter. I fought several opponents and none of them are worthy to me.
Once I found my worthy opponent, I would prove myself a worthy fighter.

Peter tries to convince Ron.

Peter:

You know, Ron. I suggested that you should change the topic. And don't get me wrong... I don't violence is a great answer to your journey. You should hear my wisdom.

Ron:

Really, like listening to some boring lectures. No thanks

Peter:

It's not boring. It has every meaning for life. If you could at least ignore your bloody minds, you would understand.

Ron:

Bloody minds?

Sooner, Ron and Peter argue.

Ron:

I would have you know that my motive is not violent nor bloody because my people think of me as a hero and worth protecting. If you could have seen it, you would understand.

Peter:

You think I'm blind. You need to understand that violence does solve all your answers.

Ron:

Okay then, you want to settle... Let's fight.

Now, Peter and Ron fight face to face

Peter:
You don't want to do this.

Ron:
Let's find out.

(Fight)

At the end, they stop fighting.

Peter:
Okay, this settles.

Ron:
Indeed

Peter and Ron went separate way

Ron:
Till we meet again.

Peter:
Till we meet again

THE END